

Maze of Memories (Saylor's Version)

(Verse 1)

Walking through the city streets, long ways from the falls.
Like velcro gripping me down, I can't escape these halls.
I see your shadow everywhere, haunting every turn,
But I'll keep moving forward, though my soul still burns.

(Chorus)

Lost in a maze of memories,
Caught in the web of what used to be,
But I'll break free, I'll find my way,
Through the pain, I'll see the light of day.

(Verse 2)

Echoes of your laughter, whispers in the wind,
But I'll drown them out, won't let them win,
With every step I take, I'm closer to the truth,
That I'm stronger without you, in the end, I'll prove.

(Chorus)

Lost in a maze of memories,
Caught in the web of what used to be,
But I'll break free, I'll find my way,
Through the pain, I'll see the light of day.

(Bridge)

I'll rise from the ashes of our shattered dreams,
Find the courage to mend my broken seams,
With every tear, I'll wash away the past,
And build a future that will forever last.

(Chorus)

Lost in a maze of memories,
Caught in the web of what used to be,
But I'll break free, I'll find my way,
Through the pain, I'll see the light of day.

(Outro)

So I'll keep walking, one foot in front of the other,
Knowing that I'll find myself in the arms of another,
But until then, I'll be strong on my own,
In this city of dreams, I'll find my way home.
